Opening Party

A small step for A-viva, but a big one for Frankfurt: On the 10th of March, we celebrated the birth of the A-viva Culture Lounge. Friends and fans came to enjoy the cozy atmosphere of A-viva "culture". The evening was filled not only with the flow of wine and music, but also with inspirations for cultural projects coming up: we are looking forward to Chinese young directors´ movie nights, book readings by Frankfurter authors, or French Soirées featuring gourmet dinner and conversation in French.

Philosophy

Robert Ziegler, philosopher from the University of Würzburg, visited A-viva to present the topic of religion and philosophy to an audience of different cultural backgrounds, The participants, encouraged to voice their opinions, engaged in lively debates throughout the evening while maintaining the spirit of respect for each religion. Our next philosophy session will take place on Tuesday May 8, focusing on existentialism.

Salsa

The right moves and hip-shaking skills were the key to salsa dancing. Griselda, the instructor, guided the workshop step by step as she unfolded the tricks of the dance. The international dance students thanked her for her South-American cheerfulness and beautiful, clear demonstration. The time limit was, of course, ignored and the crowd danced the night away. The next event for all dance freaks among us will be the "Fiesta Mexicana" with Salsa Party on the 21st of April.

From Japan to India

More than culinary expertise was offered during the cooking evenings with Naoto and Alex. We learned that rice comes in varieties and that hot does not equal spicy. It was surely a widening of the taste buds for all participants. Both chefs are looking forward to more cooking events with new A-viva friends! The next culinary journey will be led by Ricardo from Mexico.

Upcoming Events

Highlights of upcoming A-viva events include free Spanish conversation classes starting Monday April 23. It is part of the 4 week program, with classes taking place on Monday evenings.

The weather is calling! we will soon start our outdoor volleyball & picnic season. Anyone who wants to join us for some good fun, feel free to drop us an email.
